Money Math & Budgeting

Program 2019/2020

A major contributor to independence is the ability to count, read, and budget money and these goals form the curriculum focus for the Money Math & Budgeting course. The program begins with the skills needed to count out the money required to make a purchase and identify whether the correct change has been received. Skills targeted in this section of the course are skip-counting money, matching the closest bill to the cost of an item, counting out the bills for a given amount, estimation of correct change and the use of a calculator. Money literacy emphasizes place value, punctuation, and stating dollar values in spoken form. The budgeting curriculum begins with planning to make purchases within a small personal budget and aims to develop the skills required to manage a monthly budget scenario.

This course is taught by a BC-certified teacher and one teaching assistant.

Eligibility Criteria

This program is open to young adults between the ages of 19 and 30. Students should be able to read for information and be working towards independence in making purchases and some aspects of personal budgeting.

Class Size

Each class is capped at 8 students with one BC-certified teacher and one program assistant.
